REFLECTION:

“And the wind upon its way whispered the boughs of May, and touched the nodding peony flowers to bid them waken.” Siegfried Sassoon This spring the annual flowers - azaleas, lilacs, iris, and peonies - seem to have an abundance of exuberant blooms in their welcome of the warmer days. An emergent hope is also evident as more and more people are getting vaccinated, and friends and families are gradually regaining comfort in visiting face-to-face.

COVID UPDATE

The CDC has released updated guidance for people who are fully vaccinated. People are considered fully vaccinated for COVID-19 ≥ 2 weeks after they have received the second dose in a 2-dose series (Pfizer-BioNTech or Moderna), or ≥ 2 weeks after they have received a single-dose vaccine (Johnson and Johnson (J&J)/Janssen).±

A color-coded graphic pdf "Choosing Safer Activities" is available to download that illustrates levels of safety (green, yellow, and red) for various activities for unvaccinated and vaccinated persons. NOTE: Officials still caution that crowded outdoor settings pose risks and urge everyone — both the vaccinated and unvaccinated — to wear masks when attending sporting events, live performances and parades.

Links to other updated guidelines include:

- visitation to nursing homes and post-acute care settings
- indoor visiting with other vaccinated individuals travel

Being fully vaccinated brings with it a sense of relief, hope, and new possibilities. But easing back into "normal" activities may also bring some unexpected anxiety and stress. An article in Psychology Today, 5 Tips for Easing Into Post-COVID Life When the Time Comes offers several points to facilitate this transitional time.

Asthma and Allergies Awareness Month

This time of year is a peak season for people with asthma and allergies. The Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America (AAFA) highlights data in a factsheet; it notes that asthma is the leading chronic illness in children. The theme of this year’s awareness month is to dispel myths and help people understand asthma and allergies. An AAFA research report finds that Black, Hispanic and Indigenous people in the U.S. are disproportionately burdened by asthma. You can find a 31-day plan for action to raise awareness of asthma and allergies.

The program provides funding to 21 states and 3 tribal organizations throughout the U.S.

May is National Nurses Month

For many years we celebrated National Nurses Day or National Nurses Week. The World Health Organization and others designated the year 2020 as “The Year of the Nurse and Midwife” to recognize the pivotal role of nurses in their response to the many events impacting the country and the world. The American Nurses Association, wanting to recognize the extent and impact of nurses' response to the pandemic, continued the observance through 2021. A blog about National Nurses Week (May 6-May 12) shares historical perspectives, information about Nurses Week 2021, and links to articles on self-care and nurse mental wellness.

Take this opportunity to say “thank you” to Faith Community Nurses who have responded during the pandemic in many different ways:

- Developing educational webinars and website materials related to COVID-19
- Maintaining phone, electronic, and visitation connections to parishioners
- Clarifying infectious disease prevention information
- Serving on task forces for implementing CDC recommendations
- Adapting care delivery for members of their faith communities
- Providing spiritual support and bereavement care
- Participating in wider community assistance responses
- Promoting vaccination
- Volunteering in immunization clinics

June:

National Melanoma/Skin Cancer Detection and Prevention Month

The warmer season with increased sun exposure is the time to help spread sun-safety messages and increase public awareness about skin cancer. The American Academy of Dermatology website includes 18 educational resources to help others learn how to prevent and detect skin cancer. Skin cancer is the most common cancer in the U.S. and is also one of the most preventable cancers. The American Academy of Dermatology offers educational resources on skin cancer including resources in Spanish.

The CDC offers information about skin cancer and sun safety in several formats for resources. One format is shareable graphics which you can post on your website or social media. Here are some summary points for sun safety:

- Wear a hat
- Wear protective clothing. Tightly woven, bright, or dark clothing are best at protecting your skin – pastels, bleached cottons and whites let in the most UV radiation.
- Use Broad-spectrum Sunscreen SPF 30 or higher.
- Use extra caution near water and sand. They reflect and intensify sun's damaging rays & increase risk of sunburn.
- Apply 1 ounce (2 tps.) of sunscreen to entire body 30 minutes before going outdoors; reapply every 2 hours or immediately after swimming or sweating heavily.
- Don't be fooled by a shady day – the sun's harmful UV rays can penetrate through clouds and even a dense fog.
- Seek shade when appropriate, especially important between 10 am and 2 pm, when the sun's rays are the strongest.
- Watch Your Shadow! The American Academy of Dermatologists offers a helpful tip to measure your shadow:

National Safety Month:

The National Safety Council will soon have updates to the website for June. Each week has a different focus for safety. As part of the NSC community safety it offers seasonal safety information. The Summer Safety Tips offer valuable suggestions for each of these topics:

- Beat the Heat
- Bug Safety
- Playgrounds
- Fireworks
