

and process personal stories regarding their understanding of how racism remains an unresolved and an unhealed wound within the Christian Church. The process is a consecutive journey towards learning and then teaching others how to navigate diverse narratives, develop relationships across cultures, plan and strategize direct action campaigns, and then self-evaluate next steps to implement the learnings into a lifelong journey.